5.5 Average Banking Program (ABP)

The Program is aimed at acquiring customers who do not have adequate income declared in the financials; however, demonstrate satisfactory Banking behavior and maintain higher liquidity in their Bank accounts.

The product attempts to derive the income of the Customer by assessing his/her bank balances and extrapolating them to arrive at an income figure based on which Loan eligibility can be computed.

The table below describes the methodology used for computing loan eligibility under the Banking Product

Version-LAP Policy V/June'25 | Axis Finance | Internal

The treatment of existing obligations is as follows:

- If serviced from same Bank accounts which are considered for banking calculations - such obligations shall be ignored as the bank balances are already net of EMI payments. And for the new obligations
- For new obligations with less than 6 months, full EMI to be obligated and not to be averaged out while calculating ABB.

Target Segment	SEP/SENP, All Properties
